

World leaders bid farewell to Japan's Emperor Hirohito

Associated Press

TOKYO — The world's royal and powerful joined Japan today in a final farewell to Hirohito, the emperor-god made mortal by a disastrous war who died in January after a reign of 62 years.

Nine Shinto priests in white robes waved holy branches Thursday to purify the mausoleum in a hilly, wooded area where the former Son of Heaven will be buried.

Dawn broke under gray skies today, and a light rain fell on the Imperial Palace as priests performed a private Shinto rite inside that began 13 hours of funeral ceremonies.

Heads of state including President Bush, royalty and other representatives of 163 countries were present for the funeral, protected by 32,000 police.

The officers checked cars and patrolled streets in case of attacks by foreign terrorists or by Japanese radical groups that threatened to disrupt the ceremonies.

Police in Nagasaki said a letter containing a bullet and a death threat was sent on Wednesday to Mayor Hitoshi Motoshima, who had said Hirohito bore some responsibility for World War II. The mayor was in Tokyo for the funeral.

Opponents of the imperial system held at least three peaceful rallies Thursday evening. One group of about 100 marchers in central Tokyo carried a placard likening Hirohito to Adolf Hitler.

Hirohito, who died of cancer Jan. 7 at age 87, presided over the rise of Japanese militarism, the crushing defeat in World War II and a remarkable postwar transformation to one of the world's leading economic powers.

Those who planned Japan's event of the century made today a day of processions through streets closed to traffic: the first, of 32 vehicles, taking the emperor's body from the palace to the Shinjuku Imperial Gardens for the funeral, and the second to the mausoleum in Hachioji, 30 miles west of Tokyo.

Two giant open-sided tents were built in the Imperial Gardens to accommodate 10,000 people for nearly two hours of religious and state funeral services. A hearse was provided for the trip to the mausoleum; oxen pulled the coffin of Hirohito's father.

On Thursday, workmen painted guard rails and cleaned the roadside for the million people expected to line the route to Hachioji.

Japanese officials say participation by 163 nations make this the largest state funeral or gathering of international leaders in modern history.

Many of the dignitaries used Thursday, the day before the funeral, for meetings with officials from Japan and other nations.

Bush, on his first trip overseas trip as U.S. chief executive, met for lunch with President Francois Mitterrand of France. He also met with the Japanese prime minister, Noboru Takeshita; King Hussein of Jordan; President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt; President Chaim Herzog of Israel, and leaders from Portugal and Thailand.

Provo man charged with rape, kidnapping

By BRIAN TARACENA
Universe Staff Writer

A Provo City man arrested Wednesday morning in connection with the rape of a local woman was arraigned Thursday at 10 a.m., and might be facing five years to life said Capt. George Pierpont, of Provo City Police.

Pierpont said that Jack Gessop, 45, is supposedly connected with the Feb. 22 kidnapping and sexual assault of a 22-year-old Provo woman.

Jim Taylor, Utah County Prosecutor, said, "Gessop is being charged with first degree accounts of aggravated kidnapping, aggravated rape, aggravated sexual assault and being a habitual criminal."

Pierpont said no connections have been made between Wednesday morning's rape and five other rape cases reported this year. He added that the other rapes are still under investigation.

Peirpont said that in the past two months, just in Provo, there has been one attempted rape and two kidnappings.

Taylor said Gessop allegedly pleaded guilty to criminal charges on two occasions in a Sacramento, Calif., district court, but declined to mention what Gessop was charged with or possibly sentenced to in the California court.

He said that depending on Gessop's record in California and the outcome of the preliminary hearing, Gessop could be convicted as being a habitual criminal.

"He must be convicted of these counts before he can be convicted as being a habitual criminal," said Taylor.

Gessop, who was arrested at his apartment in Provo, has a preliminary hearing scheduled for March 2.

Trent Nelson, a neighbor of Gessop's, said Gessop is not a very sociable person who "keeps to himself."

Nelson said Gessop does not have "too many friends," but was frequently out of the apartment. Nelson said Gessop appeared to be normal person and with no outward emotional problems.

"I didn't know him very well. I've only spoken to him on occasion while coming and going," Nelson said.

Utah gets new laws as session ends

Legislation ranges from registering AIDS victims to surrogate-parenthood contracts

By GERTRUD STIEFLER
Senior Reporter

Despite a deadlock on the issue of a $19 million tax reduction, leaders of both houses of the Utah legislature agreed that the 45-day 1989 general session which ended at midnight Wednesday had gone very well.

"This last session we've had little partisanship," said House Majority Leader Craig Moody, R-Sandy, who called the tax cut the hottest issue on the agenda. Senate Minority Leader Wilford R. Black, D-Salt Lake City, called the session "slow." They said some of the bills that passed during the session were important legislation.

One measure regarding victims of AIDS sponsored by Sen. Winn Richards, D-Ogden, will require physicians, hospitals and laboratories to report the names of people infected with the AIDS virus to the State Health Department. According to a related proposal, also by Richards, prison inmates would be tested and segregated based on their AIDS status. It would also prohibit an infected prisoner from sharing quarters with one who does not test positive for the AIDS virus.

Another piece of legislation set a two-year moratorium in Utah on surrogate-parenthood contracts for profit, but would still permit "altruistic" parenthood.

House bill 7, introduced in previous sessions as a part of the governor's anti-substance abuse legislative agenda and now finally passed, will take away the driver's licenses of youths up to age 18 who commit offenses related to drug or alcohol use. Suspension after the first offense would be six months, enforced at the judge's discretion, and an automatic one year after the second offense. Critics of this proposal have said that the punishment would take away authority from the parents and give it to the judge.

An anti-smoking law, also aimed at youth, will ban cigarette vending machines in general public places and prohibit staff from smoking during school hours.

To boost Utah's bid for the 1998 Winter Olympics the legislature established, with clear majority-backing, a non-profit Winter Games Authority to monitor the bidding process as well as a way to raise $4 million from state and local sales taxes toward the estimated $40 million needed to fund the construction of all the facilities.

Another proposal passed which brought the Salt Lake City Redevelopment Agency into a partnership with the county, state and the Utah Jazz to build a 18,500 seat arena and authorized it to provide $20 million in bonds.

Senate bill 207 allocated $5 million to the state Disaster Relief Board, which can loan the money to the Washington County Water Conservancy Disaster to resolve the 250 to 300 private property damage claims that arose from the Quail Creek dike failure.

Two bills, sponsored by Rep. Gene Davis, D-Salt Lake City, and Rep. Franklin Knowlton, R-Layton, extended the property-tax breakers to senior citizens and is estimated to cost the state $700,000 to $1 million a year.

The curcuit breaker is a state-divided credit against yearly county property-tax bills, according to the Salt Lake Tribune.

Prompted by advertisement by Smith's inc., boasting to have the lowest of all grocery prices, the House and the Senate agreed on requiring a 15-day long price stability before retailers could make such claims.

Rep. Janet Rose's, D-Salt Lake City, itemized bill proposal passed and will require hospitals to send a detailed bill to patients upon their request. On the day before the closing of the session the House made a final vote which authorized the state to insure service stations for leaking underground gasoline tanks.

Utahns honored for bravery; 9 recognized by foundation

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah Chapter of the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge has honored nine Utahns for acts of bravery, including Dave Conley, whose arms and legs are permanently scarred by the electricity that coursed through his body after his rescue of three others.

Five months after the incident, Conley has had skin grafts on two of his fingers. His left thumb is still stiff and sensitive, making it difficult to perform mundane tasks, such as buttoning his shirt or tying his shoes. "If I was to walk out of a building today and there was a dog being electrocuted, you would have to hold me back," Conley said prior to a recent awards program where Gov. Norm Bangerter praised him and eight other heroes.

"After this tragic thing happened, I got some attention and people were saying 'Hero this,' and 'Hero that,' he that," he said. "And I knew in my heart that I wasn't a hero. I knew I didn't do anything great; that's just the way I am."

Last August, Conley, 45, looked out the window of his Provo office and saw people watching three men who were sprawled on the ground, convulsing and unconscious. Two men had been installing a metal sign when their truck hit a power line.

Conley was advised not to touch anything to avoid injury, but in response, he bent down and pulled the two workers to safety. Electrical

Dropouts make honor roll

Group supports delinquent girls

By LEEANN LAMBERT
Universe Staff Writer

The Women in Management Council based in Utah County is supporting a highly successful group home program for delinquent and abused girls in Pleasant Grove, said the WIMCO president.

The Girl's Village in Pleasant Grove is part of a three-home project started in 1969 by Lila Bjorklund of Salt Lake City. Bjorklund had worked in Salt Lake City's juvenile delinquent programs and found that there were programs especially designed for delinquent boys, but no programs especially for troubled girls, said Kathy Buckner, WIMCO president.

Most of the girls in the Girl's Village program are high school dropouts, said Buckner. But 70 percent of the girls in the program become honor roll students and almost all the girls who enter into the program graduate from high school.

"WIMCO was founded in 1986 as a professional development group basically set up for networking, but we wanted to do something to help in the community. At Christmas time, we adopted the Girl's Village in Pleasant Grove because we wanted to help girls who are disadvantaged to actually get a chance to succeed in life," said Buckner.

Bjorklund opened the first home for girls in Salt Lake City built on donated land and from private contributions in 1975. "In 1982, we opened our second home in Salt Lake City, and in September of 1987, we opened the home in

Disused compressor cause of ammonia leak

By STEVEN K. POWELL
Universe Staff Writer

Although Wednesday afternoon's anhydrous ammonia leak at the old Utah County Meat Packing Co. could have been lethal, no one was injured and the event proved to be no more than an inconvenience to nearby businesses.

The leak occurred when workers, who were draining ammonia out of the old refrigeration machinery, opened a valve and let ammonia into a compressor whose packing seals went bad during years of idleness, said Rod Jones, Provo's assistant fire chief.

"The workers are draining the ammonia out of the refrigeration equipment so it can be torn apart and moved out of the building," said Provo Police Lt. Mike Mock.

Mike Oliver, service manager for Hussman Refrigeration (the company draining the ammonia), said, "When they shut down the plant, they had to close all the valves on the equipment; to drain the system I had to open the valves and that allowed the ammonia to get into the faulty compressor."

He said that when he realized there was a leak, he closed the valve immediately and the only ammonia that leaked out was that which had already entered the compressor.

"Although probably less than one gallon of ammonia actually leaked out, the smell of 100 percent ammonia is so strong that it doesn't take much to be offensive," said Oliver.

Businesses in the buildings next to and across the street from the packing company said the leak was bad for business because their shops were either shut down or blocked off, and the smell of ammonia was offensive.

High concentrations of ammonia can be dangerous to people if inhaled and can also cause irritation on the skin where moisture is present, such as around the eyes and mouth or areas of perspiration, said Mock.

Oliver said there was never any real danger of an explosion with the gas because there would have to be 15 percent to 40 percent ammonia in the air for it to ignite. Oliver said there was less than 15 percent ammonia in the atmosphere with this leak, and the danger to people was not great.

Sexually abused Indian children neglected

WASHINGTON — Indian children who are abused sexually are being neglected by the tribal court system, social services and negligent federal agencies, a Utah judge has told Congress.

Third Circuit Judge William Thorne told a special committee that in Utah, the state government provides an example for the rest of the nation by the way it provides social services for children on reservations.

Most every other state refuses to grant such services to reservation children, he said.

Thorne's testimony came Wednesday before a panel investigating allegations of fraud, abuse and neglect by the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs. The hearing Wednesday focused on charges that the BIA does not adequately investigate and deal with child sex abuse cases.

Thorne said when abuse is reported on reservations now, the focus is mainly to criminally punish the perpetrators. The needs of the victim are often overlooked, he said.

"In many cases I believe that automatic initiation of criminal sanctions simply allows the system to 're-victimize' the child victim," he said.

For example, an 11-year-old victim reported abuse by her father in hopes that authorities would just make it stop. But criminal charges were filed, leading her mother to develop an acute drinking problem and finally to run away from the family.

Human legs found in SLC dumpster

SALT LAKE CITY — A pair of human legs, severed with surgical precision, have been found in a garbage container behind a grocery store.

Detectives were not certain whether they were dealing with a murder case. "We have no idea what we have here," said Salt Lake County Sheriff's Capt. Robert Jack. "It may be something from the university labs."

However, University of Utah Health Sciences Center spokeswoman Anne Brillinger said checks of the hospital's morgue and anatomy labs failed to turn up any indication of missing body parts.

Further, she said the U of U has not taken in a fresh cadaver in two weeks.

The limbs were discovered Wednesday afternoon by a man rummaging for cardboard boxes in the garbage container, Jack said.

The man saw a plastic bag, pulled on it and uncovered a stocking-clad foot. Detectives found the second limb.

Each leg had been placed in a cardboard box and covered by a light green trash bag. Both feet had socks — one black, one navy blue.

Panel zeroing in on causes of dike break

ST. GEORGE — The chairman of a board investigating the cause of the New Year's Day failure of the Quail Creek dike says the panel is close to determining why the earthen dike broke and sent a wall of water down the Virgin River.

But retired soil engineer Robert James of Fort Worth, Texas, has released few details as the four-member panel meets here this week to prepare a draft failure report.

"We feel comfortable we're zeroing in on the essential elements of why the dike collapsed," he said.

On Thursday, the panel held a closed-door session to "thrash out a rough draft of our report," James said.

He did say the panel was trying to answer three questions associated with the collapse shortly after midnight Jan. 1, which sent a 12-foot wall of water rushing down the river and caused an estimated $12 million damage to homes, apartments, businesses and farms. Four bridges also were damaged.

The committee was studying what caused the collapse, and whether the dike can be safely reconstructed at the same location.

Hatch joins Simon on anti-hate legislation

WASHINGTON — Utah Republican Sen. Orrin Hatch has joined with Illinois Democratic Sen. Paul Simon in introducing legislation to collect national data on crimes motivated by racial, ethnic, religious or sexual orientation-based hatreds.

In pushing the bill, Hatch labeled such "hate crimes" as being among "the most heinous of all crimes because they strike so deeply at their victims' individuality and self-esteem."

"While the FBI collects certain national crime statistics, there is no federal record-keeping concerning the occurrence of hate crimes," he added.

The legislation would require the attorney general to collect data for the next five years about crimes that show evidence of prejudice.

"Hate crimes are not committed in one local area, but surface all across America. Yet we have no uniform method of determining if these crimes are on the rise and exactly where they are taking place. This bill is aimed at rectifying that information gap," Hatch said.

Environmental impact study demanded

WASHINGTON — The Army must conduct a full-blown environmental impact study on its revised proposal for a biological warfare defense laboratory at western Utah's Dugway Proving Ground, opponents of the project say.

Although such a study could further delay the lab's construction by years, any effort by the Pentagon to avoid preparing an environmental impact statement will bring a renewed challenge in the courts by the Washington-based Foundation on Economic Trends, said Andrew Kimbrell, an attorney for the watchdog group.

The foundation's 1984 lawsuit forced the Army to conduct an EIS for an earlier "biosafety level 4" lab. A BL4 facility would have been constructed to allow experiments with diseases for which no cures exist.

Public opposition led to the Army revising its plans to a BL3 facility, which would have allowed experimentation only with diseases for which cures exist. However, opponents then began demanding a new EIS on the BL3 lab.

Army officials counter that BL3 work has been done at existing Dugway laboratories for years without safety problems.

Repeat photos chart change, Idaho geology professor says

By JON CRECY
Universe Staff Writer

A former geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey discussed his involvement in repeat photography research and the methods for using this tool to chart vegetation, land use and erosion changes around the world Thursday evening in the Bean Life Science Museum auditorium.

Harold Malde, a University of Idaho geology professor, displayed photos from Jerusalem, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming as old as one hundred years to illustrate how repeat photography principles may be used to record changes in landscapes.

Malde said the idea of using photographs to record the details of landscape is as old as photography itself and repeating a photograph must take into account the setting from which the original photo was taken. "The first task in repeating an earlier photograph is to find the vantage point," Malde said. "From this point a matching photograph is made using some suitable camera and lens."

Addressing his involvement in repeat photography, Malde said he enjoyed following the footsteps of pioneer photographers. "I have been thrilled to stand in their footsteps and to see the subjects they chose to photograph," Malde said.

Engineers assemble in ELWC

High school and college students compete in bridge building

By KATHY HARPER
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held its annual bridge building contest in the ELWC Stepdown Lounge Thursday afternoon.

"We've been doing this since 1976," said Civil Engineering professor Don Budge.

The event is a service project done by the student civil engineering chapter. They assemble the pieces, put the kits together and go to high schools to help with the testing. "The students literally have put hundreds of man hours in it," said Budge.

The competition is divided into three divisions. The university and open division contests took place at BYU. The high school division, however, took place over a two week period at 21 schools.

Two brothers majoring in civil engineering took first and second place out of 15 contestants in the university division. Senior Rick Powell, 25, and Freshman Ryan Powell, 19, of Anchorage, Alaska, placed with bridges that could hold 1,673 pounds and 1,495 pounds, respectively. Third place went to Marshall Mendenhall with a bridge that held 1,436 pounds.

The first place open division winner was Dixon Day, of Lehi High School, with a bridge that held 1,890 pounds. Second was Jeff Kitchen, from American Fork High School, with 1,887 pounds and third was Bret Woffinden, also from Lehi, with 1,720 pounds. "The high school students usually build stronger bridges because they have built several. For university students, it is usually their first time," said Budge.

Out of the 1,485 bridges entered in the high school division, first and second place came from Lehi High School holding 1,908 pounds and 1,635 pounds. "Lehi has dominated the contest the last several years," said Budge. The third place bridge held 1,607 pounds from American Fork High School.

French Revolution is still influencing the politics of France

By DORIS HERNANDEZ
Universe Staff Writer

Concepts of the French Revolution continue to influence political thought and activity in France, said the guest speaker for Thursday's "Flea Market of Ideas".

J. Keith Slade, of the French and Italian Department at BYU, spoke of four series of events that can help students to better understand France. The first series of events took place between 1356 to 1358, the second in 1789, the third in 1968 and the fourth in 1988.

Slade said during the first period, as well as the second period — which marked the beginning of the French Revolution — France faced a very difficult financial situation. The government was broke and the cost of food had risen.

"The price of bread reached the highest it has ever been in the history of France," said Slade.

During the French Revolution a National Assembly was established by the people of France. "This became a symbol of the entire revolution, even to this day," he said.

During the revolution there was a period of fear which lasted for about three months in which villages started to defend themselves against the soldiers that had come to destroy them, said Slade.

He also said that during this period, the end of feudal rights was declared and the rights of man, which says that men are born equal and remain equal under the law, was established.

Slade said during 1968 people were discontent with the economic situation of France which was based on the idea of keeping the working class on a low income level.

Student uprisings created a battle in which there were about 400 people injured.

During this time, there was no transportation and almost all of the workers that belonged to unions went on strike, said Slade.

He also said that by 1981 the socialists were able to elect a president and place a majority in the legislature without communist help.

During the following two years, the economy tried to keep inflation down with a free economic system, Slade said.

According to Slade, in 1988, more than 30,000 nurses demanded better working conditions and higher wages.

The transportation system as well as the postal service stopped and as a result the government was faced with small groups that cause pressure and influence.

Single adult fireside broadcast Sunday

A fireside for single adults will be broadcast over the satellite television network of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Sunday, at 6 p.m.

Speakers will include a member of the First Presidency of the Church and a member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, said President Howard W. Hunter of the Council of Twelve Apostles.

All single adults in the Church are encouraged to view the program, either live or on tape, said Hunter. Members are encouraged to invite their single friends and neighbors to see the program as well, he said.

The fireside, originating in the Tabernacle on Salt Lake City's Temple Square, may be seen on KBYU (channel 11) at 8 p.m.

Founding dean of BYU law school appointed to federal court council

By JAMES V. RODGERSON
Universe Staff Writer

Rex E. Lee, the founding dean of the J. Reuben Clark Law School, has been appointed by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist to be part of a 15-member Federal Court Study Committee.

The committee is to examine the problems facing the federal courts and to develop a long-range plan for the future of the judiciary. The committee was formed by Congress and includes members from all three branches of government.

Lee's appointment took effect as of the first of the year when the committee officially came into existence. Lee has been assigned to the subcommittee on the relationship between the state and federal courts.

According to Lee, the overall objective of the committee will be to find ways to ease the workload of the federal courts. "This is particularly problematic in many of the southern circuits. By easing the workload of the lower federal courts it will in turn ease the workload of the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court being the ultimate appellate court in the federal system," he said.

The committee will examine problems and settle questions of jurisdiction particularly with regard to suits involving multi-state litigants. They will also be looking into possible changes that could be made with respect to the kinds of issues the state and federal courts handle.

"The task this committee will undertake is one of enormous importance to the immediate and long-range future of the judiciary," Rehnquist said.

Lee was the U.S. solicitor general, representing the federal government before the Supreme Court for four years before leaving his post to assume a job in the Washington office of Sidley & Austin and to teach part-time at BYU.

BYU students can use computerized library

By MARGARET MCKIE
Universe Staff Writer

BYU students have access to the largest computerized data base system in the nation through the Harold B. Lee Library, the program manager of DIALOG said Thursday.

Ann Caputo said BYU is one of the most active users of DIALOG, which is part of Knight-Ridder Business Information Services. DIALOG, a "vast electronic library," according to Caputo, contains 372 data bases. One data base contains the entire contents of the Library of Congress and another contains encyclopedias, she said.

The person uses a computer to search for references on any topic. For example, someone can look for references under one word, two words together or two words in the same sentence. She said, it costs 25 cents per minute to use DIALOG.

Connie Lamb, associate librarian of the Lee Library, said DIALOG is useful for doing research because it is fast and the computer is flexible. She said students can make appointments at the reference desks in the library to use DIALOG.

Lamb said the cost of using DIALOG depends on which data base the student uses and on how complicated the search is. In addition to the per-minute charge of connecting with DIALOG, there is a charge of about 15 cents for each reference found. According to Lamb, the per-minute charge is usually about $1. Lamb said, it takes about 30 minutes for a student to complete a search with DIALOG, but the time the student is actually connected to DIALOG is usually between 10 and 20 minutes.

Marie Osmond's Christmas special

Filming is completed at Osmond Studios

By REBECCA PIXTON
Universe Staff Writer

It was Christmas at the Osmond Studios in Orem this past weekend. Marie Osmond was filming her first Christmas special due to be aired during Christmas of this year, and there were multitudes of people willing to celebrate with her at this odd time of the year.

Driving up to Osmond Studios, a line of people wearing their "after ski" garb could be seen trailing out and around the parking lot through the cars, in anticipation of being able to be in the audience and perhaps getting a glimpse of Sally Struthers, Lee Greenwood, Candace Cameron and, hang on, Kirk Cameron, who were all scheduled guests for the show.

Entering the studio the sights of Christmas were everywhere, poinsettia trees, lights, snow, white and red all over. It was almost enough to forget that it was actually the middle of February.

Though there were many people helping with the production — running around and trying to ensure a smooth run — the atmosphere of the studio was quite pleasant.

On Saturday, when Marie was taping with Kirk Cameron, and between takes, the two were joking with each other and the audience. Kirk read a Christmas poem he had found and wanted to share with the TV audience.

But as everybody knows, or maybe they don't, before actors go on stage, their hair and make-up must be perfect.

Kirk Cameron took an active interest in this ritual, looking in the mirror, pointing at his hair and saying, "I don't want this part too far forward. How does that look?" Kirk spent just a moment before he taped his poem to attempt to position a piece of hair that had gone wacko.

But after several failed attempts to control the little rascal, he simply grasped the thing and plucked it from its comfortable place. It was so comforting to realize that even television stars have an occasional run-in with the "out-of-control hair" syndrome.

Every now and then members of the Osmond family would appear in the studio. Marie's father walked around and introduced himself to members of the audience. Marie's adopted one-year-old daughter, Jessica, made an appearance waving and smiling at the audience, melting hearts as she moved back and forth from the arms of her father to her mother.

Though there were many sights and sounds to watch while sitting in the studio, the thought of "Why are they filming this in February?" was disturbing.

The question was answered by John Pack, communications director for the show, when he said, "the reason why we are filming so early is because now is the time that we've got the snow. If we waited until November when the snow returns it would leave no time for the final details of the production."

It seemed logical enough that there needed to be snow in Utah when a Christmas special was aired. Marie also mentioned that she was expecting a baby about the time the filming would need to be done and she didn't want to look "gross" on television.

Cooperation among the directors and stars was apparent and overwhelming. Kirk was asked his opinion on which camera angle would be best for particular shots.

On Sunday, Sally Struthers entertained the audience with a rendition of "Jingle Bell Rock," complete with choreography by Alan Osmond. As a special encore performance to the lucky few who were able to make it into the studio, she did a variation of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" the way Richard Burton would have done it. The amazing aspect of the whole thing was that just a few days before, Struthers had recovered from laryngitis.

On top of all the commotion and presence of the stars, there was still more for the audience to enjoy, as the audience was treated to a "half-time" performance by Chuck Montgomery, a comedian from Alabama. Montgomery charmed the audience, with help from Pack, while the crew members moved and positioned various cameras and equipment preparing for the next series of shots.

Many people were excited at the prospect of being able to actually be on camera. Those that wore their bright colored ski sweaters were more likely to be picked to actually be a part of the studio audience and have a chance at being seen on camera.

The favorite words used by the studio managers and helpers were, "Quiet please. Quiet on the set," as well as "OK, lets do that one more time." Every once in while an anonymous voice would abound over the

Goals necessary for success, experts say

By REBECCA PIXTON
Universe Staff Writer

Success, in many facets of life, is often simple but not always easy. Setting goals and developing a personal plan to reach those goals can positively influence not only personal success but also personal concept, according to a motivational consultant in Provo.

"Our minds need to be programmed and developed much like a computer. They will not perform until they have been properly programmed to follow a plan," said Tricia Harper-Quai, who is also a lecturer for a local educational company.

So often people who set goals become discouraged and depressed when they are unable to reach those goals and consequently their self-concept suffers because the feeling of failure over-shadows all else, she said.

It is important when deciding on a goal, regardless of the area of focus, that the goal itself is distinguished as being a goal and not a dream, she said. This will help in overcoming the feeling of discouragement that often accompanies attempts to reach goals.

"If you are not willing to accept all the responsibilities of reaching a goal then it is only a dream. When people fail to reach what they have set as their goal, it only means the goal was never a goal but only a dream,"

Harper-Quai said. Objectively looking at life and deciding what is realistic for a person to accomplish, taking into consideration the lifestyle and time of the individual involved, will help to ensure an obtainable, realistic goal, said Ryan Thomas, associate dean of student life.

Identifying specifically and vividly what must be done in order to reach a goal before the actual process begins, as well as considering the reaction and need of other people is an essential aspect of obtaining goals, said Fred Rowe, associate professor of Educational Psychology at BYU.

It is important to do some self-examination into the internalized aspects of our lives, to make sure goals are realistic, said Bonnie Woolsey, a self-image lecturer.

In addition to making sure goals are realistic, there are other steps that can be taken that increase the ability to reach goals.

Verbal affirmation of the goal in present tense positive is something that can help the outlook of reaching goals, said Harper-Quai.

"Telling yourself that you already have the quality you desire serves as a reinforcement," she said.

Visualization of the goal also enhances the prospect of success in individual lives. Visualizing oneself with the qualities that are being strived for will further positive success, Harper-

Quai said. "All action is in the mind first."

Research shows that imagining and visualizing the goal is almost as good as the actual performance of the activity, said Rowe.

Committing a goal to some concrete form, such as writing it down, can also produce successful results, Thomas said.

"Writing down goals where they can be seen serves as a prompter and symbol of the commitment that has been made," said Thomas.

Harper-Quai said flexibility of character is an important asset to have when striving to reach a goal, especially when things aren't going well. "An intelligent person learns that change is often good," she said.

Thomas said varying the lengths of goal attainment allows for the monitoring of the goal to see whether it is still realistic. "This is an important part of goal attainment," he said.

Thinking positively can also have an effect on the ability to reach goals. The attitude toward a particular goal reflects how realistic the goal is, said Thomas.

The attitude taken to reach a goal will color the approach to the goal. Though the approach is not the sole issue, the perceptions of the ability to accomplish bear on the outcome of the endeavor, said Thomas.

Rowe said a goal is actually an extension of individual self concept. It shows the world and the individual how that individual perceives himself.

"Goals demonstrate the aspirations of people, not only to others but also to themselves. Much can be said about people when looking at their goals," Rowe said.

In addition to accepting the responsibilities that go with reaching particular goals, there are other steps that can be taken to increase the possibility of success in all facets of life.

Developing a personal style takes a while, yet these characteristics define each individual and add positively to the self concept of that individual, said Harper-Quai. Starting with an enthusiasm for ideas of any kind will aid in developing such a style. This enthusiasm will consequently lead to an enthusiasm for people and an ability to create new personal "panache," she said.

Cougars loses to Cowboys, 72-65

By JON E. MELTON
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's varsity basketball team was unable to overcome an early lead by the University of Wyoming Thursday in Laramie, and went on to lose 72-65.

"We might have lost the game in the first couple of minutes when we got down 6-0," said BYU Coach Anderson.

"We have been able to keep our turnovers down to a minimum lately, but tonight they hurt us."

BYU began the game by losing the ball three times to Wyoming on steals, and when the Cowboys scored on those three turnovers the Cougars found themselves down 6-0.

Throughout the rest of the first half BYU had to play catch-up ball.

Despite the slow start by Michael

Smith, a 6-foot-10-inch center from Hacienda Heights, Calif., (4 points), and Andy Toolson, a 6-foot-6 forward from Salt Lake, (2 points), BYU was able to go to the locker room at half-time only down by one point.

The game looked like it might turn around for the Cougars in the beginning of the second half when Smith hit a jumper that put BYU up 32-31 which ended up being the Cougar's only lead. The only real threat BYU was able to give the Cowboys was with under a minute left when Cougar Mark Heslop, a 6-foot-5 guard from Ogden, came in off the bench to hit a three-point bucket which narrowed Wyoming's lead to five.

BYU was forced to foul, and Wyoming was able to connect on both ends of their free throws putting the game out of reach.

"I think the turning point in the game was when we shot well in the clutch," said Wyoming Coach Dees. "We haven't been able to hit our shots when things got close in the last few games."

"I thought that Robin Davis played a great game tonight," said Anderson. "He is one of our leagues premier players."

Davis was able to go 7-8 during a critical point of the game and ended up leading all scorers with 29 points on the night.

Smith led the Cougars in scoring with 24 points and also moved a step closer to being BYU's all-time leading rebounder with 10 for the game. Smith also went 8-8 from the line which gave him a new Cougar record of 31 consecutive free throws.

Marty Haws, a 6-foot-2 guard from Midvale, was able to get his average of 14 points and Toolson also ended up in double figures with 11.

John Fish, a 6-foot-9 center from Salem, Ore., had to leave the game with an injury to his left foot after he had scored six first half points.

Wyoming's record is now 5-8 in the WAC and 13-14 on the season.

BYU shares a 5-8 WAC record with the Cowboys and they drop below .500 on the season with a record of 13-12.

BYU will play their remaining three games at home beginning with in-state rival University of Utah, Saturday at the Marriott Center. Tip off will be at 3 p.m.

This game has been labeled the WAC Game of the Week, and will be shown locally on KUTV, channel 2.

THEY SAID IT

"Nothing in this league says I have to take a cheap shot from anyone."

— Orlando Woolridge, forward for the world champion Los Angeles Lakers, said, in an interview after the Utah Jazz/L.A. Lakers game Wednesday night, of an incident involving Karl Malone of the Jazz. Woolridge said he received a flagrant shove in the back, sparking pushing and controversy, which finally resulted in fouls against both Woolridge and Malone.

Tennis team beats Northwestern

The BYU women's tennis team began its third quad meet of the season by defeating Northwestern University 7-2 Thursday.

The BYU women's tennis team beat Northwestern University 7-2 on Thursday.

No. 1 position 6-2, 6-1.

"My serve felt really solid," Taylor said after the match.

Cougar Susanna Lee, a senior from Seoul, Korea, defeated Soyoung Lee 7-6(7-1), 6-0.

According to Lee, she won the match by concentrating and being consistent.

Her opponent, Soyoung, played an almost flawless first six games, Valentine said.

"I really had to concentrate in the tie breaker," Lee said.

"(In the second set) I didn't make a whole lot of errors," Lee said. "She made good shots too, but I just didn't make many errors."

Lee's record at No. 2 singles is 2-1 and her overall record is 8-1.

Junior Mary Beth Young, undefeated at No. 3 singles, took three sets to defeat Lynn Nabors, a senior from Cincinnati, Ohio, who sat out last season because of illness, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

"Mary Beth had her hands full," Valentine said.

Freshman Anna Funderburk came up with the Cougar's only loss in singles when she was defeated by Julie Willet 1-6, 2-6.

Funderburk's overall singles record this season is 6-3.

BYU's Maddy Diekmann, undefeated in singles this year, defeated Lindsay Matthews 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 in the longest match of the night.

Sophomore Sheri Yandle defeated Julie Staples 6-3, 2-6, 6-4. Yandle has an overall singles record of 3-1.

Taylor and Young defeated Nabors and Staples in a quick 6-2, 6-2 match while their teammates Funderburk and Yandle defeated Soyoung Lee and Cindy Galloway 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

At the No. 2 spot Lee and freshman Patti Urban could not come back after being down 2-5 in the third set and lost 5-7, 6-1, 4-6. Lee and Urban have a 6-2 record in doubles.

Today the University of South Carolina will challenge BYU at approximately 2 p.m. while the University of Texas, the Southwest Conference title holder, will take on the Cougars Friday at 2 p.m.

Tracksters to battle for WAC title

By FRONDA WISEMAN
Universe Sports Writer

Healthy, wealthy and wise they say, but the BYU track and field team would settle for healthy as the men go to battle against UTEP in the WAC and the women travel to Idaho.

The 20th annual Western Athletic Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships begins today at the United States Airforce Academy in Colorado Springs, and it looks like another grueling BYU/UTEP battle for the title.

BYU and the University of Texas El Paso are the only two WAC teams ever to have won an indoor track title. BYU won in 1970, 1973, 1985, 1987 and 1988 and UTEP has won in all the other years beginning in 1971.

"We can win if not too many of our people are sick or hurt," said Coach Willard Hirschi.

Hirschi will take 23 tracksters to the WAC, two of whom will be returning champions. Frank Fredericks won last year in the 200-meter dash and Ted Mechem won in the mile run.

BYU leads the WAC with the most NCAA qualifiers. The following Cougars have already qualified: John Myles-Mills and Frank Fredericks (55-meters and 200-meters), Russ Muir (800-meters) and Per Karlsson (35 lb. weight throw.)

Hirschi would like to see Akogyiram, Mechem and Dave Chipman, who competes in the 3,000 and 5,000-meters, qualify this weekend.

"Akogyiram may have the flu or a relapse of malaria, and the high elevation (7,200 feet) will make it tough on Chipman," said Hirschi.

Hirschi said if one of the tracksters comes really close to qualifying this weekend, he might try to send him to compete somewhere next week, as this is actually the last scheduled meet before nationals.

This will be Hirschi's first year at the WAC as head coach of the Cougars but he said he doesn't feel that much different than he did as an assistant coach.

"The responsibilities are the same but the ultimate responsibility does rest with me," said Hirschi, "if things go bad, I won't sleep well."

Besides UTEP, New Mexico could also give the Cougars a run this weekend. The Lobos have finished third in the conference for the last two years.

Wyoming is the only current WAC member other than BYU or UTEP to have finished as high as second, which it did in 1987. Out of the eight WAC teams, Hawaii, who does not have an indoor team, is the only one who will not be competing. San Diego State will send 10 tracksters.

Meanwhile, the women will be in Pocatello for the Idaho State Intermountain Championships, which Coach Craig Poole said will be the women's largest meet of the season so far, and the closest thing they will have to an indoor conference meet.

"I think we would dominate the meet, if everyone was healthy," said Poole, "but I still think we'll do really well."

Hopeful NCAA qualifiers for the women are Christy Opara, who is three-hundredths of a second away from qualifying in the 55-meter dash, and Maxine Springer who is less than a second away from the 400-meter qualifying time.

Colorado State leads Cougar swimmers after first day action

The Colorado State women's swimming and diving team jumped out to an early lead in the seventh annual High Country Athletic Conference Swimming and Diving Championships in Fort Collins, Colo.

Defending champion BYU trails CSU 143-228, followed by Utah (109), New Mexico State (56), New Mexico (53), and Wyoming (49).

Colorado State won five of the day's six events. Senior Christine Wilson of BYU captured the only other title winning the one-meter diving competition with a score of 456.70, just .20 short of the HCAC record.

BYU finished second in three of the events, one of which was the 200-yard medley relay made up of K.C. Cline, Shalaan Hill, Christi Harris and Kenna Sorensen. BYU also finished second in the 800-yard freestyle relay with Teri Shimodi, Kenna Sorensen, Marlo Bissegger and Christi Harris swimming for the Lady Cougars.

Sophomore Meldon Kenney placed second in the 200-yard individual medley in a time of 2:09.02.

Last year's one-meter diving champion Courtney Nelson finished third to help put the Cougars in second after the first day's events.

Before the Championships began, BYU Coach Stan Crump said for BYU to win, Colorado State would have to have an off-day and the Cougars would have to swim great.

voits continued to course through the body of Steven Blake, 21, another passer-by who had jumped to help and was knocked unconscious from the current. When Conley attempted to move Blake, he was overpowered by pain that knocked him to the ground. Blake died.

Other Utah heroes honored at a Wednesday luncheon included: • Lowell L. Bennion, for his community service. Bennion was noted for his Teton Valley Boys Ranch, where through hard work he has helped mold the character of 1,800 young men.

Students ride for world hunger

By MICHELLE BURNETT
Universe Staff Writer

BYU students can participate in a national bike-a-thon geared to raising funds for worldwide hunger and poverty, said Overseas Development Network spokesman, Lea Schuster.

The Overseas Development Network is a national student organization dedicated to addressing the fundamental issues of global poverty and injustice through educational programs, volunteer work and partnerships with grassroots projects worldwide, said Schuster.

This summer ODN will sponsor the fourth annual cross-country hunger awareness bike-a-thon, Bike-Aid '89.

For the 1989 marathon, ODN seeks individuals who are concerned with the various issues connected to world hunger and poverty and who are willing to discuss them with the U.S. public.

"The major requirement is commitment to the issues of world hunger. We don't discriminate on cycling abilities," said Schuster.

Schuster, who helped coordinate Bike-Aid '89, said they've had participants ranging from age 15 to 65 in past years.

Aside from raising a projected total of $300,000, participants will be involved with various other events. These presentations across the country will bring attention to the plight of the poor and hungry at home and around the world and will encourage and provide opportunities for public action toward solving these problems, said an ODN spokesman.

"We'll be stopping in communities across the nation to mainly answer the question, 'Why are you doing (the bike-a-thon)?' and help orient citizens on hunger issues," said Schuster.

"It's important for all of us to be aware of the plight and suffering of so many people around the world," said Ladd Hollist, professor of political science at BYU. "The world-wide hunger problem is of such magnitude that we could barely scratch the surface in solving it.

"For example, the Brazilian government estimates 55 percent of all children ages 0-5 are considered to have some problem with malnutrition, although Brazil rates as the eighth largest country economically in the Western World," said Hollist.

Hollist, who is serving as a research associate at the Kennedy International Center at BYU, believes that participating in Bike-Aid '89 would be an educational activity.

"It would be beneficial to those participants and those who see their presentations," said Hollist.

Speaking about the American public as a whole, Hollist said we may be intellectually aware of the hunger and poverty problems worldwide, but we're not willing to do much about it.

The goal of Bike-Aid '89 is to raise awareness and funds for self-help development projects overseas and in the U.S., said Schuster. In the past three years, 287 cyclists have crossed the country with Bike-Aid, raising public awareness of the problems of world hunger and poverty as well as a cumulative total of $390,000, she said.

According to Schuster, the breakdown of the funds for ODN is:

- 50 percent to overseas development projects;
- 25 percent to domestic grassroots development projects;
- 20 percent to the ODN internship program;
- 5 percent overhead for Bike-Aid '89.

POLICE BEAT

Salt Lake company bills Utah County $16,000 for unwanted lobbying service

By JIM RAYBURN
Universe Staff Writer

Ecometrix Corp. of Salt Lake City has billed Utah County for $16,000 for lobbying services in connection with Senate Bill 77, a service Utah County Commissioners say they never agreed to.

In a letter sent to the commissioners in January, David G. Yurth of Ecometrix asked the commissioners for payment for services rendered in "drafting, sponsoring, promotion, publication and coordination of lobbying of the Utah Lake Authority Act of 1989 (Senate Bill 77)."

According to the letter, the Utah County Council of Governments agreed to have Ecometrix carry out these services and to fund it with the sale of a dredge the county obtained several years ago from federal surplus in Portland, Ore.

The Utah County Commissioners sent a letter back to Yurth stating the county never authorized him or any of his associates to do work for the county, and that Ecometrix would not be paid by the Utah County Commission. The letter states, "Be advised that the Utah County Commission and the UCCOG have not and, at present, do not plan to enter into an agreement with Ecometrix for any of the services which have purportedly been rendered by your firm or its affiliates."

"Further, this letter is sent to demand that you, your firm and its agents cease any further purported representation and/or expenditure in behalf of the Utah County Commission and the UCCOG," it says.

Commissioner Brent Morris said the mix-up occurred when Walton Farmer came to a commission meeting and a UCCOG meeting as the Economic Director of American Fork City and pushed for the establishment of a Utah Lake Authority.

Morris said a Utah Lake Authority would be responsible for deciding how to best develop the lake and property surrounding it.

LaVorn Sparks, who heads a committee appointed by Utah County to study the possibility of a Utah Lake Authority, asked the commissioners at the meeting if Utah County could use some of the $20,000 it received from the sale of the dredge for printing cost to publicize the importance of the authority, said Morris.

"We told them we would look at the possibility of using some of that money for printing cost if the civil attorneys gave us the okay," said Morris. "The attorneys response was 'sorry folks, you can not use that money for that purpose'. Nobody contracted for those people that night."

The following day, Commissioner Malcom Beck said he told Farmer, Jim Pratt Hansen, president of Ecometrix, and Yurth that the county could not use the $20,000 for the printing of pamphlets.

"I told them the very next day that that money could be used for flood control only, and nothing else," said Beck.

Beck and Morris both said the county never contracted with Ecometrix to lobby for Senate Bill 77. They said the brochure that was presented to the legislature was produced by the county and not Ecometrix, at the cost of $3,500.

Business failures down across nation

Associated Press

NEW YORK — U.S. business failures declined 6.6 percent in 1988, the biggest drop in a decade, Dun & Bradstreet Corp. reported Thursday.

The business-information company said 57,098 businesses went under last year, compared with 61,111 in 1987.

"The significant decline in failures underscores the continued strength of the economy, now in its seventh year of expansion," said Joseph W. Duncan, chief economist for Dun & Bradstreet.

"The nation's weakest regions are showing improvements, while those areas that led the expansion are holding their own," he said.

The survey said failures were down in six of the nation's nine census regions, with only the Middle Atlantic states reporting a significant increase.

The decline in failures was especially notable in states with agriculture and oil-based economies, according to the survey.

Among oil businesses, failures were down or flat in seven of the nine major sectors.

Failures in agriculture business dropped 51.6 percent to 1,823 from 3,766, and failures in the mining sector, which include oil and gas extraction, were down 21.2 percent to 494 from 627.

"The dramatic decrease in agricultural failures in 1988 is attributable to the surge in failures in early 1987, as farmers took advantage of the new Chapter 12 bankruptcy code," Duncan said.

Chapter 12 allows troubled family farmers to reorganize their debts while being protected from their creditors.

Pleasant Grove. We could use another one or two homes yet," said Bjorklund. "We have a waiting list."

The girls home program is a private, non-profit organization that contracts with the state for 70 percent of its annual budget, said Bjorklund. Another 4 percent of their annual budget is sponsored by the United Way, but "the rest of the expenses are paid for by private donations," she said.

The girls' group home program is based on "the family teaching model" said Eric Bjorklund, the son of founder Lila Bjorklund. The program teaches the girls skills to help them return to their homes and deal with life's problems.

"Studies have shown that troubled youth are lacking in certain abilities. They lack the ability to follow instructions," said Bjorklund. "They lack the ability to accept no for an answer. They lack the ability to disagree appropriately."

The program is designed to help the girls gain the needed abilities and skills through modeling, teaching, counseling and behavior modification, Bjorklund said. "It doesn't mean they (the girls) haven't been taught these skills, but that they just haven't learned them."

The homes are staffed by a couple and an assistant, both extensively trained in the family teaching model. Each home has no more than seven girls at one time. "The girls really have to work hard. I admire them especially because it isn't easy to change," Bjorklund said.

The Utah Division of Family Services recently did a study on the success rate of state group homes and found the Girl's Village program to have a 90 percent success rate, said Bjorklund.

The program's success was determined by how many girls left the group home to go to a "less restrictive" location like a foster home or their own home, she said.

The report also found that retail failures decreased 6.1 percent to 11,488 from 12,240, and services bankruptcies were down 4.7 percent to 22,686 from 23,802.

Manufacturing failures were down 1.6 percent to 4,204, while wholesale trade failures increased 2.7 percent to 4,455.

Construction failures were essentially unchanged at 6,791.
